INTRODUCTION

Revenue of the State is broadly classified into Recurrent and Capital. Recurrent Revenue includes the following: Taxes, Fines and Fees, Licenses, Earnings and Sales, Rent on Government Properties, Interests and Dividends on Government Investments, Re-imbursement and Statutory Allocation.

The bulk of Recurrent Revenue is however from Statutory Allocation and Taxes. Capital Revenue consists majorly of Value Added Tax, Excess Crude and others.

Public Expenditure also is classified into two broad groups of Recurrent and Capital Expenditure. Recurrent expenditure include personnel cost and consolidated revenue fund charges, pension/gratuities, public debt charges, salaries/allowance of public officers in the constitution and contributions to local government while capital expenditure goes to Social Services, Economic Sector, Environment & Regional Development and General Administration.

The data in this publication are disaggregated to provide details for thorough analysis and comparisons. The use of charts and graphs were also employed to enhance the presentation of data.
