FORWARD

The Edo State Statistical Year Book, 2013 is the Fourth edition produced by the State Central Office of Research and Statistics. It contains summary Statistics on Economic, Social and Political development in Edo State from 2003-2012

There are eleven chapters with each containing Information relating to a particular subject. Data are presented both by Local Government Area and at State level. The tables are numbered according to their chapters. For example a table numbered 3.1 or 4.2 means first or second table in chapter 3 or 4 respectively. The source of data is indicated at the foot of the table for easy reference and to enable users consult the source of any data for additional information if they so desire. Each chapter is preceded by introductory note to give users fore knowledge of the information contained in it.

It is our hope that this publication will be found useful for purpose of planning by individuals and Corporate Organizations.

Constructive criticisms of this publication and suggestions that will help improve subsequent editions are welcomed from users.

CHAPTER 1

WEATHER AND CLIMATE

Edo State is one of the thirty six States of Nigeria with the population of 3,233,366 and total land area is 19,794sq. Km

The state lies approximately between latitudes 5°44'N and 7°37''N and between longitudes 5°44' and 6°43'E.

Edo State is in a low-lying area except to the north where it is marked by undulating hills rising to a peak of about 672 meters above sea level.

The State experiences a tropical climate, characterized by two seasons, namely dry and rainy seasons. The dry season usually commences from early November to late March while the rainy season start from late March to early November.

The dry season is usually longer in the Northern part of the State than in the Southern part which experiences rainfall almost all year round. December to February is usually marked by Northeast trade winds which causes harmattan.

POPULATION

This section contains the distribution and characteristics of the population. A close examination of the sex distribution of the 2006 population figures (Table 2.3) reveals that males accounted for 50.5% of the population, while females accounted for the remaining 49.5%. This indicates that there are more males in Edo State than females

Table 2.4 shows the 2006 population of Edo State by Local Government Areas together with the projected figures for 2007-2015.

CHAPTER 4

HUMAN RESOURCES

In this section effort has been made to present data on the Manpower situation in the Public Service of Edo State.

It was observed that male workers are more in number than the female workers for the period of 2003-2012 across the State.

Table 4.1 shows that the distribution of Junior and Senior Staff in the Local Government Areas in Edo State. Junior Staff are those on grade salary level 06 and below and senior are those on grade salary level 07 and above. The Senior staff accounted for about 55% as against 45% for Junior Staff in 2008 and 50.5% of Senior Staff against 49.5% of Junior Staff which shows that workers on salary grade level 07 and above are more than workers on salary grade level 06 and below in the 18 local Government Areas of the State for the period under review.

NOTE: Edo State Ministry of Transport and Ministry of Basic Education were not in existence from 2003-2004 as shown in Table4.2 below.

CHAPTER 5

MEDICAL AND HEALTH

This section deals with information on number of hospitals and its ownership and reported cases of notifiable diseases across the 18 Local Government Areas of the State.

Table 5.4, shows that most of the hospitals are owned by private operators and the Local Government Councils. Data on reported cases of notifiable diseases presented in table 5.1, shows that malaria still remains the most prevalent disease in the State.
